The 3rd JOCKEY CLUB New Arts Power Features over 50 Free School Programmes

Fostering the Collaboration between Hong Kong Artists and Schools

[Hong Kong, 3 October 2019] Presented by the Hong Kong Arts Development Council (HKADC) and funded by The Hong Kong Jockey Club Charities Trust, the 3rd edition of JOCKEY CLUB New Arts Power (JCNAP 2019) will present a full range of educational activities for participation by students during the Festival's period from September 2019 until January 2020.

JCNAP 2019 opened in September with its first showcase programme The Big Happy Dying. Coinciding with the new school term opening, JCNAP 2019 kicked off more than 50 educational events for schools to partake. The eight performing groups of JCNAP 2019 will go beyond traditional venues to reach out to teachers and students through open rehearsals, school visits and guided tours. The celebrated home-grown artists of these performing groups will tour local kindergartens, schools and universities with in-school workshops and master classes. They will conduct interactive activities with teachers and students for them to gain insight of the creative concepts and production process behind distinctive art works.

JCNAP 2019 school programmes are tailor-made for students with different interests and of all school levels. For example, during the school tour sessions, students can enjoy a sneak preview of selected performing programmes including The Big Happy Dying by Class 7A Drama Group, L'Orphelin by Théâtre de la Feuille and Dunhuang Reflections by Hong Kong Dance Federation.

Besides, students will also participate in extended activities including workshops and games led by the performing groups to explore the theme of each arts programme. For example, the popular local saxophone ensemble La Sax has created the “Saxo Carnival of the Animals workshops” for kindergarten children to play little music games and sing along with the music. Secondary students who are interested in dance can participate in “Time to Talk: Interactive Dance Workshop” designed by choreographer Lai Tak-wai, where they will have a hands-on experience of contemporary dance and dancing with large props used in the performance So Low. Students can also take part in renowned choreographer Daniel Yeung’s “When Lion Meets Dance” workshop to pick up some fundamentals of lion dance and contemporary dance, as well as the opportunity to attempt at contemporary choreography. Through these activities, students benefit from both enjoying the arts performances and learning practical knowledge about the artistic creations.

In addition to campus programmes, school students can attend open rehearsals of various performances organised at the performing venues. Organised prior to the performance, the open rehearsals will allow them a sneak preview of the show and the opportunity to experience the behind-the-scene production process. Moreover, guided tours for the visual arts exhibition Borrowed Scenery will be available for students at the Cattle Depot Artists Village, where they will have a guided introduction of various art pieces on display.

During open rehearsals and school visits, each student will receive an education kit, which is designed to facilitate better understanding of the background and content of each artistic work. The education kit is both a fact sheet of artists’ works and an ‘edutainment’ guide with basic knowledge about related artistic form, games and situational questions for students to indulge themselves in.
